It's been about two weeks and when The 37-year-old doesn't fall off the face and regrown back as a 27-year-old face, I can attest that the fine lines around my eyes look a little better and my very deeply congested pores are definitely (slowly) starting to improve. (Note that the improvement began with some mild break-outs because all the crude worked themselves, but it doesn't seem like gel cream is causing any additional problems.) I think I was just suffering through some early skin detox.) No, the gel is not disgusting or smelly or snail-y. This really reminds me of any run-of-the-mill primer type product, although definitely less drying up. It also promised to correct dark spots and hyperpigmentation, but I've seen zero improvements there so far. Hit it, ladies. What are you using? And love? Or hate? Let's have a #ThrowbackSmackdown because it's almost fallen and we all need to make even serious life decisions about lipstick and nail polish shades. TwitterFacebookPin IEmail article articles
